This study investigates three songs composed during the years of 1964 and 1965 that reflected the words and actions of activists in the Civil Rights Movement. The writers of "Birmingham Sunday," "Mississippi Goddam," and "People Get Ready" created their songs to provoke Americans to participate in civil rights protest actions. These three songs were at the forefront of changing musical perspectives about the Movement. The three compositions moved beyond standard civil rights themes of transcendence to comment on racial violence, reveal the divisiveness among Movement organizations, and contemplate the role of faith in the campaign for civil rights. This essay explores the messages of the three songs through analysis of four components: lyrics, music, vocals, and performance. Each of these components in the songs reveal evidence of how the songwriters and performers were able to connect to their audience and motivate those listeners to reflect and react to the events in the Movement and the actions of civil rights activists. Each song played a vital role in the Movement during the mid-1960s. All three compositions have established legacies that continue to inform and inspire listeners in the years since their recordings.

The Thorough-bass Primer

I dedicate this book to my dearest: children Gina and Nancy, grandchildren David, Melanie and Alexander, son-in-law Steven Kirshenbaum and relatives and survivors. I dedicate this book also into the memory of my beloved: wife Dorrit m.n. Dranger, mother Reva m.n. Teicher, father Eizig Wolf, sisters Rona Gottesman and Helen Hofstein, brothers Naftali, Joseph, Isydor and Abraham and all martyrs. I lived in Turka, attended schools there and law in the University Jana Kazimierza in Lwow. Since 1941 I went into hiding to the forest, from German and local Nazis and ended up in a Soviet labor camp in Ural from 1942 to 1945. As a Polish citizen I was transported back to Poland. On the way I was lucky to find my brother soldier Abraham. All others were murdered. In horror we made our way to the US zone in Hof, Germany(DP Camp). In 1949, we came here. I worked 40 years for Equitable. During postwar years I wrote 585 short poems.
