In the twenty first century the prime hope of educated persons in India for jobs is in the sphere of Information Technology, which may take rapid strides under the leadership of the different states that are emphasizing the importance of Information Technology. At present there are nearly five lakhs people working in Information Technology as compared to the registered unemployed job seekers of about 4 crores (Narayana, 2004). Computer education at the school level is essential to enable children coming out of school to be computer literates and that acquiring basic knowledge in computers would be useful to them either in gaining employment or in pursuing higher studies (Human Development Report, 2003). The Indian economy grew at 5.9 per cent annually compared with the average of 2.8 per cent for the world between 1990 and 2002. The major contributor to this striking performance is India's thriving service sector, led by information technology (IT).

Respirators are used in a variety of workplaces including emergency response, mining operations, construction, manufacturing, and hospitals. In 2001, National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) and Bureau of Labor Statistics commissioned a nationwide survey of respirator use in the workplace, the results of which were published in the 2003 report Respirator Usage in Private Sector Firms. The purpose of the survey was to evaluate respirator use and practices, including training practices and the value of respirator manufacturer’s instruction, in order to help guide NIOSH respirator certification and research. This National Research Council

(NRC) report evaluates the survey in terms of several measures such as the adequacy and appropriateness of the survey instrument, the survey methodology, data analysis, and the conclusions drawn from the data. The NRC report finds that the survey was an important first step in collecting respiratory protection data from a probability sample but that several improvements could be made in survey design and analysis. Based on the review of the survey, the NRC report concludes that data on respirator use would be best provided by employers and employees in the context of the work setting. Public Key Infrastructures, Services and Applications John Wiley & Sons
