as part of an organization's integrated marketing system. It presents, in detail, the various types of professional selling functions as well as the process of presenting a product to a customer and closing a sale. It describes how a professional salesperson should follow up after a sale in order to maintain customer satisfaction and develop a long-term relationship. This professional reference goes global, too, by discussing sales and negotiation activities in different cultures. The book does more than discuss the steps of selling; it also includes comprehensive information about what it takes to manage key accounts as well as salespeople, especially recruitment, training, compensation, and evaluation. It features exercises, cases, and role-playing to achieve its objectives. Salespeople and managers alike will benefit from the knowledge and guidance provided in Professional Selling: Types, Approaches and Management.

Yet, no marketing management book on the market today fully and effectively captures and communicates to students how marketing management is really practiced in the 21st century business world. Clearly, it is time for an updated approach to teaching and learning within the field. Marketing Management 2e is designed to fulfill this need.

International Marketing presents an innovative, integrated approach to the course, in which marketing concepts are explored in depth within the international context. Daniel W. Baack, Eric Harris, and Donald Baack identify five key factors that impact any international marketing venture—culture, language, political/legal systems, economic systems, and technological/operational differences—and discuss them in relation to the core marketing concepts of markets, products, pricing, distribution (place), and promotion.
