The SAGE Guide to Writing in Policing Wipf and Stock Publishers Ideal for instructors and students in a wide range of sociological courses, this guide makes the case that thinking and writing are integrally related and that writing, therefore, exercises the sociological imagination. Written in a clear and conversational style, A Guide to Writing Sociology Papers examines a wide range of writing assignments for sociology courses at all levels of the curriculum. Employing a variety of writing samples as a means to illustrate effective writing, this brief and inexpensive text teaches students how to deftly research and write about sociology.

We all face stress and tension in our daily lives. We might even wonder why our God of abundant goodness doesn't remove the everyday struggles we face. Jesus' interactions with Martha and Mary in the Gospel provide us the key to understanding how God shows us his love by allowing tensions in our lives. As we follow the sisters' transformative journeys through their own struggles, reflecting on what transpires between Scripture verses, we see their initial tension become the catalyst that drives both Mary and Martha to the feet of Jesus — the place where all discover peace. Grace in Tension explores the areas where stress arises in our own lives. Each chapter ends with a thought-provoking prayer to inspire us to go to God with our problems, followed by questions for reflection to help us see all the ways he's working for our good. God doesn't create any of it, but he does show up amid life's difficulties, ready to lead us through. No matter how big or small our struggle, when we seek him out, he reveals what we need to do to resolve our tension, transforming it into grace. ABOUT THE AUTHOR Claire McGarry is the founder of MOSAIC of Faith, a ministry for mothers of infants to school-aged children to explore their faith through motherhood. Mathematics research papers provide a forum for all mathematics enthusiasts to exercise their mathematical experience, expertise and excitement. The research paper process epitomizes the differentiation of instruction, as each student chooses their own topic and extends it as far as their motivation and desire takes them. The features and benefits of the research paper process offer a natural alignment with all eight Common Core State Standards for Mathematical Practice. Writing Math Research Papers serves both as a text for students and as a resource for instructors and administrators. The Writing Math Research Papers program started at North Shore High School in 1991, and it received the 1997 Chevron Best Practices in Education Award as the premier high school math course in the United States. Author Robert Gerver's articles on high school mathematics research programs were featured in the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics publication Developing Mathematically Promising Students, the NCTM's 1999 Yearbook, Developing Mathematical Reasoning in Grades K - 12, and in the September 2017 issue of the Mathematics Teacher.

Avoiding the technical jargon for which English professors are known and admired, The Humble Essay introduces the college essay and explains how it differs from the story, report, reflection paper, and five-paragraph trainer-essay. It then guides students through the process of educating themselves about topics and developing their own thoughtful ideas and shows them how to present their ideas with effective college essays. This down-to-earth composition textbook introduces college writing in everyday language so that non-majors are more likely to actually read these chapters, understand the ideas, and then put those ideas to good use.

In pursuit of quality education in Bhutan there has been a desire to shift from teacher-dominant class teaching to students taking initiative in their own learning. This paper investigated the issue of moving teaching and learning from teacher-centered classes to independent learning of students. The research was carried out at Samtse College of Education, Royal University of Bhutan (RUB) with B. Ed first year science student teachers who were majoring in chemistry as one of their major subjects. This coeducational class had 28 student teachers at the age range of 20-25 years of which 11 were females. The research commenced in August 2008 and completed in November 2008. Because this research involved changing and approach in my own class I have adopted action research using Kemmis & McTaggart's (1998) model modified by Maxwell (2003) starting with reconnaissance and generating action research questions. Data were gathered over time from a variety of strategies such as observation of student teacher's presentation and discussion, reflective writing, critiquing an article, and class test. The data findings are authenticated using researcher's observation, feedback from critical friend, and diary notes. A tally was used to record their participation in the classroom activities such as the frequency of questions raised, clarifications sought, volunteering to do presentation, and taking initiatives in the group work. The data collection also involved student teachers maintaining class journals and writing reflective paper. The journals and reflective papers were marked based on the criteria set. A class test was also conducted to check their ability to answer higher order questions. The findings from this multiple sources reveal that student teachers are more open for discussion and interaction after the intervention action, and their write-ups and views are more analytical and reflective. What impressed me most was these student teachers, who were usually quite and distant themselves from the tutor, became so close with me toward the end of the semester. This study was successful as I could reap the fruits of my desired goals. My colleagues were overwhelmed by the progress student teachers made after the intervention and they would like to model my strategy in their class in the immediate future. This research project is timely for a young university like RUB, as research activities are very crucial for the improvement of educational programs. Lately, we see a number of promising scholars taking up research activities but these activities are often inhibited by lack of research funds and short of research ideas. This research would help kick start research activities as more people are interested in action research as it is more viable given the limited time and budgetary constraints. Moreover, action research can be undertaken in the workplace and is intended to enhance the quality of a researcher's normal professional activities (Maxwell, 2003). Appended are: (1) Criteria for Journal Reflection; and (2) Criteria for Critiquing an Article. (Contains 5 figures and 1 table.). Developing Reflective Thinking Oswaal Books and Learning Private Limited Volumes in Writing Spaces: Readings on Writing offer multiple perspectives on a wide-range of topics about writing, much like the model made famous by Wendy Bishop's "The Subject Is . . ." series. In each chapter, authors present their unique views, insights, and strategies for writing by addressing the undergraduate reader directly. Drawing on their own experiences, these teachers-as-writers invite students to join in the larger conversation about developing nearly every aspect of craft of writing. Consequently, each essay functions as a standalone text that can easily complement other selected readings in writing or writing-intensive courses across the disciplines at any level. Topics in Volume 1 of the series include academic writing, how to interpret writing assignments, motives for writing, rhetorical analysis, revision, invention, writing centers, argumentation, narrative, reflective writing, Wikipedia, patchwriting, collaboration, and genres. Papers in Biochemistry Fostering Critical Reflection in Adulthood A Guide to Transformative and Emancipatory Learning The SAGE Guide to Writing in Policing: Report Writing Essentials equips students with transferable writing skills that can be applied across the field of policing - both academically and professionally. Authors Steven Hougland and Jennifer M. Allen interweave professional and applied writing, academic writing, and information literacy, with the result being a stronger, more confident report writer. Students are also exposed to a number of best practices for various elements of report writing, such as the face page, incident reports, supplemental reports, investigative reports, and traffic reports, as well as search warrants and affidavits.

This coherent presentation of clinical judgement, caring practices and collaborative practice provides ideas and images that readers can draw upon in their interactions with others and in their interpretation of what nurses do. It includes many clear, colorful examples and describes the five stages of skill acquisition, the nature of clinical judgement and experiential learning and the seven major domains of nursing practice. The narrative method captures content and contextual issues that are often missed by formal models of nursing knowledge. KEY TOPICS: The book uncovers the knowledge embedded in clinical nursing practice and provides the Dreyfus model of skill acquisition applied to nursing, an interpretive approach to identifying and describing clinical knowledge, nursing functions, effective management, research and clinical practice, career development and education, plus practical applications. MARKET: For nurses and healthcare professionals.
