The Encyclopedia of Italian Literary Studies is a two-volume reference book containing some 600 entries on all aspects of Italian literary culture. It includes analytical essays on authors and works, from the most important figures of Italian literature to little known authors and works that are influential to the field. The Encyclopedia is distinguished by substantial articles on critics, themes, genres, schools, historical surveys, and other topics related to the overall subject of Italian literary studies. The Encyclopedia also includes writers and subjects of contemporary interest, such as those relating to journalism, film, media, children's literature, food and vernacular literatures.

Entries consist of an essay on the topic and a bibliographic portion listing works for further reading, and, in the case of entries on individuals, a brief biographical paragraph and list of works by the person. It will be useful to people without specialized knowledge of Italian literature as well as to scholars.

Two decades after the publication of several landmark scholarly collections on music and difference, musicology has largely accepted difference-based scholarship. This collection of essays by distinguished contributors is a major contribution to this field, covering the key issues and offering an array of individual case studies and methodologies. It also grapples with the changed intellectual landscape since the 1990s. Criticism of difference-based knowledge has emerged from within and outside the discipline, and musicology has had to confront new configurations of difference in a changing world. This book addresses these and other such challenges in a wide-ranging theoretical introduction that situates difference within broader debates over recognition and explores alternative frameworks, such as redistribution and freedom. Voicing a range of perspectives on these issues, this collection reveals why differences and similarities among people matter for music and musical thought.

Le migrazioni sono una realtà complessa, diffusa e strutturale, che negli ultimi decenni ha conosciuto uno sviluppo senza precedenti. Esse presentano inoltre risvolti spesso drammatici, come testimonia la cronaca ormai quotidiana. Alla crescita del fenomeno si accompagna, peraltro, lo sviluppo di politiche restrittive e di espressioni xenofobe e discriminatorie. Lo studio presenta una lettura interdisciplinare della realtà migratoria, allo scopo di evidenziare le convergenze significative che risultano dal dialogo tra scienze umane e scienze teologiche. Il carattere processuale e relazionale delle migrazioni, la dimensione aperta delle identità nazionali, etniche e culturali, offrono all'approccio teologico la possibilità di cogliere uno spazio ermeneutico che ci permette di parlare di Dio, della persona umana e del mondo, di Cristo e della Chiesa. L'analisi del rapporto profondo tra missione e migrazioni arriva ad ipotizzare la missione tra, per e con i migranti come un nuovo paradigma della missione stessa della Chiesa. Sulla scorta dei documenti della Chiesa postconciliare risulta inoltre evidente il passaggio dalla pastorale migratoria di conservazione ad una pastorale missionaria, dialogica e comunionale. Tempo delle migrazioni, il nostro è soprattutto tempo dello straniero. In questo contesto assume importanza il tema del riconoscimento, assoluto ed incondizionato, reciproco e riconoscente dell'altro, che apre la via alla relazione amorosa, nella quale trovano significato e si incontrano alterità e identità, unità e molteplicità, differenza e uguaglianza, periferia e centro, distanza e prossimità.

Environment, Social Justice, and the Media in the Age of the Anthropocene Servizio Editoriale Fiesolano

Environment, Social Justice, and the Media in the Age of Anthropocene addresses three imminent challenges to human society in the age of the Anthropocene. The first challenge involves the survival of the species; the second the breakdown of social justice; and the third the inability of the media to provide global audiences with an adequate orientation about these issues. The notion of the Anthropocene as a geological age shaped by human intervention implies a new understanding of the human context that influences the physical and biological sciences. Human existence continues to be affected by the physical and biological reality from which it evolved but, in turn, it affects that reality as well. This work addresses this paradox by bringing together the contributions of researchers from very different disciplines in conversation about the complex relationships between the physical/biological world and the human world to offer different perspectives and solutions in establishing social and environmental justice in the age of the Anthropocene.

Firmly rooted on Roman and canon law, Italian legal culture has had an impressive influence on the civil law tradition from the Middle Ages to present day, and it is rightly regarded as "the cradle of the European legal culture." Along with Justinian's compilation, the US Constitution, and the French Civil Code, the Decretum of Master Gratian or the so-called Glossa ordinaria of Accursius are one of the few legal sources that have influenced the entire world for centuries. This volume explores a millennium-long story of law and religion in Italy through a series of twenty-six biographical chapters written by distinguished legal scholars and historians from Italy and around the world. The chapters range from the first Italian civilians and canonists, Irnerius and Gratian in the early twelfth century, to the leading architect of the Second Vatican Council, Pope Paul VI. Between these two bookends, this volume offers notable case studies of familiar civilians like Bartolo, Baldo, and Gentili and familiar canonists like Hostiensis, Panormitanus, and Gasparri but also a number of other jurists in the broadest sense who deserve much more attention especially outside of Italy. This diversity of international and methodological perspectives gives the volume its unique character. The book will be essential reading for academics working in the areas of Legal History, Law and Religion, and Constitutional Law and will appeal to scholars, lawyers, and students interested in the interplay between religion and law in the era of globalization.

Captures some special moments and some key issues at the heart of the transition from Pope Benedict XVI to Francis, with the intuition that this unexpected transition reveals something which is not only a special "Catholic event," but also a particular historical moment in a tradition in flux.
