PAX ROMANA: THE RISE OF SEREN tells the story a pilot,
Captain Mark Knutson,
who flies patrol missions over the Mediterranean Sea for EuroSecure. He lives in a futuristic Rome, a city with a plasma energy dome and a mix of classical and ultra-modern architecture, including 200-story megabuildings. His is a world of the most advanced technology and weaponry, of holograms and imminent revolution, of cloaking technology and drug enhancements, of heartache and a second chance at love. After breaking off with Angela, a stunning Italian blonde who is an obsessive follower of quasi-religious fringe groups, Mark meets the lovely and talented Dominique Lecuyer, a French media-assistant for EuroSecure. Angela, meanwhile, has become a disciple of the mysterious Seren, whose supernatural powers are growing daily. A unique combination of action-adventure with hi-tech war machines and weapons, romance in Rome and Paris, a holographed fantasy realm that includes battles with fire-breathing dragons, a dystopian vision, and a world on the brink of the apocalypse." England, there was Roma Mater . . . Before King Arthur, there was the King of Ys . . . In the wild and eldritch time between the fall of Rome and the rise of our own age, the kingdom of Ys was ruled by the magic of The Nine and the might of the king, their husband. How the Nine conspired with their gods to bring him to them, though he belonged to Mithras and to Rome, is only the beginning of an enchanted saga that weaves together Celtic myth with distant memories of Roman Britain - and adds a magic of its own. Valentine Pontifex W.H. This anthology aims to provide the foreign reader with a number of significant samples of the works of a number of Romanian science fiction authors, predominantly dating from the last 25 years, which have produced some of Romania's best science fiction. It contains some of the shorter works of established authors who still possess considerable creative potential at no more than 60 years of age at the time the selection was made. Some - Liviu Radu, Cristian Tudor Popescu, Dănuț Ungureanu, Sebastian A. Corn, Michael Hăulică and Florin Pîtea among others - are acknowledged masters of the genre - not only among the community of science fiction authors, but also literary critics as a whole, members of the Writers' Union of Romania and other authorities in the field. These are accompanied by the works of a number of young authors, who in recent years have published convincing, original material and who, in effect, represent a new generation of Romanian science fiction writers.

"The Martian Cabal" is a captivating science fiction short story written by Roman F. Starzl. This story is a dramatic interplanetary journey set in the future where humanity has set up a presence on Mars. The narrative revolves around Tom, an Earthling who arrives on Mars and rapidly becomes entangled in a perilous web of political and personal issues. He learns that Mars is divided into two factions: "Greenies," who want to preserve the planet's unique ecosystem, and "Reds," who want to terraform Mars to make it more like Earth. In the midst of this ideological battle, Tom finds himself caught between powerful individuals with opposing objectives. He gets caught up in the "Martian Cabal," a secret group with its own ambitions for the planet's future. As Tom navigates this perilous landscape, he must make vital choices that will impact not only his own fate, but potentially the fate of Mars itself. While Tom works to learn the truth behind the Martian Cabal and the true motivations motivating the competing groups, the narrative unfolds with drama and intrigue. "The Martian Cabal" through Roman F. Starzl is an engrossing blend of science fiction and political thriller, providing readers with a thought-provoking look at the intricacies of colonization, environmentalism, and power dynamics in a future Martian civilization.

Tom est fou, parce qu'il croit voir le Monde Vert qui orbite autour d'une autre étoile et qui est habité de merveilles créatures de cristal. Il est encore plus fou de traverser sul, à pied, d'est en ouest, les Etats-Unis du 22e siècle ravagés par la Guerre des poussières et en proie au chaos. Mais voilà que tout le monde se met à avoir les mêmes visions que Tom, et qu'il se révèle disposer d'un fabuleux pouvoir. Celui de passeur.

For all its concern with change in the present and future, science fiction is deeply rooted in the past and, surprisingly, engages especially deeply with the ancient world.

Indeed, both as an area in which the meaning of "classics" is actively transformed and as an open-ended set of texts whose own 'classic' status is a matter of ongoing debate, science fiction reveals much about the roles played by ancient classics in modern times. Classical Traditions in Science Fiction is the first collection in English dedicated to the study of science fiction as a site of classical receptions, offering a much-needed mapping of that important cultural and intellectual terrain. This volume discusses a wide variety of representative examples from both classical antiquity and the past four hundred years of science fiction, beginning with science fiction's "rosy-fingered dawn" and moving toward the other-worldly literature of the present day. As it makes its way through the eras of science fiction, Classical Traditions in Science Fiction exposes the many levels on which science fiction engages the ideas of the ancient world, from minute matters of language and structure to the larger thematic and philosophical concerns.

Robert Silverberg a reçu en 2004 pour l'ensemble de son oeuvre le titre de Grand Maître de la Science-Fiction, la plus haute distinction honorifique du domaine. Sur près de deux mille ans, Silverberg illustre par tableaux successifs une histoire parallèle d'un Empire Romain qui a connu bien des vicissitudes, des guerres et des crises politiques mais qui n'a jamais cessé d'exister et de faire régner, avec quelques interludes sanglants, la Pax Romana. Le Christianisme en est absent, ne serait-ce que parce que les Juifs n'ont jamais réussi à quitter l'Égypte des Pharaons. Quelques siècles plus tard, un envoyé spécial de l'Empereur particulièrement perspicace liquide proprement un prophète d'Arabie avant qu'il ait eu le temps de fonder l'Islam. Et donc l'Empire a survécu, avec ses dieux auxquels personne ne croit. Trop vaste pour être gouverné par un seul homme, il est le plus souvent divisé en deux zones d'influence, l'Empire d'Orient et l'Empire d'Occident qui parfois se chamaillent, se font même la guerre mais finissent toujours par se réunifier.

This book, first published in English in 1979, is now accessible to Romanian language readers. Gerald J. Bobango provides an important, detailed and masterful view into the life of Romanian immigrants to the United States and Canada during the 20th century, their transformation into Romanian-Americans/Canadians, and especially the exercise of their freedom to worship according to their Romanian Orthodox Christian faith in the New World.

Martin Padaway was a smart enough young man, with a scientific education, but no universal genius. He had the misfortune to be suddenly dropped back into time, and a very alarming time at that-sixth century Rome, when the Goths ruled Italy, and civilization in the west was collapsing. To make a living, and to try and shore up civilization, Padaway undertook to introduce inventions such as gunpowder, clocks, and printing. Some worked and some didn't, often with dramatic and hilarious results.

For fans of explosive military science fiction with complex worldbuilding. * "Rousing far-future sci-fi novel...grand old-fashioned space opera." —Publishers Weekly (starred) In the year 2448, the interstellar Empire of Rome spans an area almost as wide as the far-flung colonial worlds of the United States of America. Caesar Numa Pompeii is still rebuilding his shredded empire after the catastrophic war that his predecessor, Caesar Romulus, waged against the United States. War's end left Romulus in a nanovirus-induced coma, captive of Caesar Numa. Numa has under his command a powerful living weapon--a patterner, an augmented man capable of synthesizing vast amounts of data into actionable intelligence. Now, Numa has lost his prisoner, and his patterner may have turned on him, while the U.S.S. Merrimack has lost the commander of her Fleet Marines, Colonel T. R. Steele. Events take a Mobius turn when fanatical devotees of Romulus rescue their fallen leader from his tortured captivity and fashion him into the most capable patterner ever created. Romulus is back, more insanely brilliant than ever. But without his queen, all the power in the universe means nothing. Romulus will move heaven and Earth and space and time to rescue his beloved Claudia. Admiral John Farragut returns to the space battleship Merrimack in an attempt to head off the impending temporal catastrophe. Past and future hinge on a critical moment when time broke once before in the distant star cluster known as the Myriad.

The Roman Empire conquered the world. They crushed new religions, they explored the planet, discovering the Americas, Asia, Africa and the poles. Their legions crushed all opposition. Various Emperors were interested in science, hence with the resources of the world they advanced all of the sciences. They expanded life spans, they developed flight and space flight. In our year of 2015 they developed their first FTL drive. Their experimental ship exploded when it opened Rome's first manned warp drive. An Alien ship just happened to entering warp speed at the same time the combined energizes destroyed the Roman ship. The aliens became interested in these humans, they learned all they could about the Romans. Rome sent it's second experiential FTL ship thinking the first ship's explosion was a fluke. The aliens made themselves known to the Romans which changed everything the Romans thought. The aliens were more advanced than the Romans. The current Emperor told his closest advisers and commander of the Legions, the Legatus, he remembered Rome's history of conquest, Rome had always been the most advanced army, they easily crushed every other army they met. Now the tables had turned, Rome found itself with the lower technology and weapons, they had a choice, become the slaves of the aliens or?Rome only knew how conquest hence they prepared to fight the aliens.Pax Romana, the peace of Rome was shattered. Included in the story is a complete revised history of the Roman Empire which is included for reference. In the Orbit of Saturn
