Conflict between England and France was a fact of life for centuries, but few realize that this conflict originated with the Vikings and their settlement of what would become Normandy. In this compelling and entertaining history, Mary McAuliffe takes the reader back to those dark and turbulent times when Viking descendant William the Conqueror became king of England, yet as duke of Normandy remained an unwilling subject to the French crown. This led to ongoing hostility between his descendants and generations of French monarchs, culminating in the clash between young Philip A.

Many families in North America and Europe are descended from the William the Conqueror. Good record keeping of royal and noble families combined with modern genealogical databases now make it possible to trace many of today's families back for many centuries. This book does exactly that. It is not a history; it is a link-by-link genealogy connecting thousands of people alive today to this historic royal line. Requiring over 900 pages, in three volumes this work traces over 1500 families from William the Conqueror, King of England. In Volume one the first 18 generations of William's descendants are traced. Volume two continues with generations 19 through 23, and the final Volume three presents generations 24 through 31. All of the families are listed in the introduction.

Lane as listed in the Battle Roll of Abby, who was from Northern France, who was a supporter and fighter for the Duke of Normandy during the invasion of Hasting, England in 1066. De La Lone distinguished himself leading large forces for William The Conqueror. He was rewarded with Lands and Lordships, primarily in Staffordshire, where he was given the main Mansions and Castles of Staffordshire, and this became his base of operations. Careful research by professional analysts using the ancient manuscripts such as The Domesday Book, The Ragman Rolls, The Wace poem, The Honour Roll of the Battle Abbey, The Curia Regis, The Pipe Rolls, The Falasis Rolls, tax records, church & parish records have found the name "Lane" throughout England, Wales, Scotland, and Ireland. The family name De La Lone is believed to be of descendants of Viking Origin about 870 AD. when the vikings invaded France. The De La Lone was a Viking who came to France during this time as warriors for their "Chiefs Stirgud the Stout", and later under their "Jarl" and "Thorfinn Rollo" who invaded France a second and third time around 940 AD. Genealogy of William Allis of Hatfield, Mass. and Descendants 1630-1919 This is a genealogy of William Allis of Hatfield, Mass., and his descendants and their connections. William was born between 1613 and 1616, and died on September 6, 1678. This work addresses his ancestors from the time of William the Conqueror's invasion of England in 1066 until William's death in 1678. The remainder of the book documents his family history to 1919, and includes births, deaths, marriages and events. "Wells", Welles, de Welles Descendants of Ragemer de Welles Who Fought for "Duke" of Normandy, William The Conqueror at Hastings Ragemer: When the "Duke" of Normandy (William the Conqueror) armies finally met at Hastings, England "Williams" army numbered somewhere between 7,000 to 12,000 soldiers and Knights versus somewhere between 5,000 to 13,000 for King Harold's army. Among Williams Knights was "Knight" (Ragemer) a servant and body guard to Lord Gilbert. After the conquest "Ragemer" was rewarded for his bravery and service, with about 1750 acres of land, two mills, and 31 villans (villagers) and their families who became his serfs. Another 24 sokemen (free peasants) rented land from him which they farmed as tenant farmers. This was not the most lavish reward he would get. He would also receive two Mansions and the Title of "Sub-Lord Ragemer de Welles" still in the service of Lord Gilbert. But this was enough to make Ragemer a wealthy landlord so long as he continued to serve Lord Gilbert with fidelity. He was now not merely "Ragemer" but now Ragemer of Welles. By the time his grandsons, the family was known as "de Welles" His descendants became Lords, Knights and rulers of Welles as well as other territories as time went on. From France to now England they would eventually come to America to Hadley, Hampshire, Massachusetts in the 1640's one (Thomas Wells) 1620-1676 as an early settler who would have 17 children. Leslie G. Pine has made a special study of Norman ancestry and of the history of the Norman period, bringing to his work a fresh critical approach. In this stirring story of the great Conquest, he applies his wide knowledge of genealogy to the existence among citizens of the United States of a large proportion of Norman blood.

William the Conqueror, 1065, to Lord Henry Bold Houghton, 1848 For many years I have entertained a purpose to put in permanent form as much of a record of the immediate ancestry and collateral branches of the Houghton family as could be obtained, but owing to the fact that my time has been twice mortgaged by the kind of business I have followed, and to a physical condition far from robust, the work has been greatly delayed. Ward Family; Descendants of William Ward

Are descendants of Kings, Dukes, Counts, Lords, Knights of Brittany, Normandy, France. Their descendants came to England with the Duke William the Conqueror in 1066 and fought at the Battle of Hastings. They were granted Lands, Castles, and Large Mansions in and about the counties of Lincolnshire, Yorkshire, Tyrinton, and Northhampsonshire, England. A descendant "Edward Spaulding" and his brother Edmund Spaulding arrive on April 19, 1619 in Jamestown, Virginia, USA. Edward would remain in Jamestown for several years while his brother Edmund continued on to Elizabeth City setting up routes of his family. These two Spauldings became the main "Progenitors" of two different lines of the family Spaulding. In 1630 Edward Spaulding arrives in Braintree, Massachusetts in 1630. His descendants moved Massachuettts to Connecticut then to New Hampshire, then to Vermont, and this book follows this line of family Spaulding from Vermont USA back through the generations to the Great King of Brittany, Sir Nominoe (Nevenoe) de Bretagne. During the Great Survey of the Domesday Bokk, Spaulding name was known as "Spalding" and in the Lincolnshire survey 1115 the name was "Spaldingis."
