 Hms Ulysses HMS Ulysses was the debut novel by Scottish author Alistair MacLean. Originally published in 1955, it was also released by Fontana Books in 1960. MacLean's experiences in the Royal Navy during World War II provided the background and the Arctic convoys to Murmansk provided the basis for the story, which was written at a publisher's request after he'd won a short story competition the previous year. HMS Ulysses (novel) - Wikipedia HMS Ulysses has many of the same elements as Monsarrat's novel, but Monsarrat practices control over his writing, he knows that magical point where language needs to stop so that the reader's imagination can complete the imagery and feelings being conveyed. In Ulysses, HMS Ulysses by Alistair MacLean - Goodreads HMS Ulysses is a light cruiser, a variant on the Dido class, with some features of the later, similar Black Prince class units. She has seen a great deal of action on the northern convoy routes to Murmansk, and is wearing out. Not just the ship's components, but her crew. As MacLean describes them, Ulysses' crew is not the indestructible band ... Amazon.com: HMS Ulysses (9780006135128): Alistair MacLean ...
