The Adventures of Cain and Frankie tells the true story of two Siberian huskies that were brought into author Jodi Ekberg's life to help her through cancer treatments and the subsequent surgeries and broken bones. Says the author, "I had become weak and depressed while I was going through

had finally given up fighting. I thought that my days were numbered. My husband Bruce saw how depressed and sick I was getting. So when I said I wanted a husky puppy, he found Cain, hoping that somehow the puppy could help me. Bruce trained him while I watched. The more Cain learned how to do things, the more I wanted to be a part of it, so I started to go to other doctors to see if they could help me. "Bruce noticed that when I was with Cain I was not depressed and seemed to be getting better each day. Cain was treated like one of our children, as our kids are grown up. Cain went everywhere we went, and did everything we did, including eating what we ate and sleeping in our bed. "Bruce and I had discussed the possibility of getting another husky so Cain would not be alone. We felt that if one husky could help me to heal, than two may help me heal twice as fast."

Do you know that Siberian Huskies can survive in weather up to -60° F? And do you know that when Siberian Huskies sleep, its tail will protect its nose from the cold? It is sometimes difficult to make our children understand the beauty of nature, to make them appreciate the small things, the beauty of a flower, the freshness of the air, the scent of grass. Many times we are not fortunate to be in contact with nature, far from a meadow, closed in the cities. Still, so often, while looking out from our balcony in a beautiful country house, we know how to observe but do not appreciate creation's beauty. Know the details and habits of a Siberian Husky as common as it is surprising, through a simple path, which fuels your child's interest and curiosity. That's the purpose of this book. But beware, prepare for the challenge! You will have to be able to answer the questions that your child will ask you by showing off their deep knowledge in the microworld of the Siberian Husky: -Mom, do you know what University has the Siberian Husky as their mascot? I do! -Hey dad, do you know what other names there are for Siberian Huskies? I do! -Grandpa, do you know what shape Siberian Huskies eyes are and why? I do! -Grandma, do you know how fast Siberian Huskies can run? I do! -Sarah, you're my big sister, and you've studied a lot, but I bet you don't know what Siberian Huskies were used in WWII for! I know that. You don't need anything else; just one click on "Buy Now," and you will let your child live a magical new adventure with their new friend Siberian Husky and the magic natural world of Dogs.

The Husky Who Ate Up the House is the true story of how a Siberian husky puppy came into the lives of a family who had already decided that they didnt want any more dogs to love and care for only to lose them to a degenerative disease. The Husky Who Ate Up the House is also the story of a mother whose love for a dog was so great until she thought she would secretly purchase a little puppy without knowledge of his pedigree. Like a wolf in sheeps clothing and a little library research, the family acknowledged that Siberian huskies are among the worlds greatest jumpers and diggers. They are a powerful combination of the wolf and malamute developed for sled-pulling. As little Khivo grew from a fur ball, he began a destructive and self-destructive odyssey inside his house of serendipity. He chewed up extension cords and gnawed on other household objects. Yet he was great with children. In no time, Khivo was now ninety pounds of strength and power. He had also won the love of the whole family. Bishop Rudolph Pringle, a neighbor who walked Khivo, said, I have never seen nothing like this dog. He picks up his leash and brings it to me to walk him. Khivo is the only dog who graduated from obedience school despite missing some weeks of training. The Husky Who Ate Up the House may just teach children about unconditional love for even an animal, love, tolerance, patience, obedience, trauma, and happiness. Khivos plight is an example of every dog having his day!

Twelve-year-old Davis lives in an old brownstone with his mother and grandmother in Brooklyn. He loves people-watching in Prospect Park, visiting his mom in the bakery she owns, and listening to the biggest operas he can find as he walks everywhere. But Davis is having a difficult summer. As questions of sexuality begin to enter his mind, he worries people don't see him as anything other than "husky." To make matters worse, his best girlfriends are starting to hang out with mean girls and popular boys. Davis is equally concerned about the distance forming between him and his single mother as she begins dating again, and about his changing relationship with his amusingly loud Irish grandmother, Nanny. Ultimately, Davis learns to see himself outside of his one defining adjective. He's a kid with unique interests, admirable qualities, and people who will love him no matter what changes life brings about.
