Billy Casper had a higher winning percentage than Arnold Palmer, he won twice as many times on the PGA Tour as Gary Player, and during his career he finished in the top twenty-five more consistently than Jack Nicklaus. And yet, when golf historians write about the legends of the game, with special attention paid to the above-listed "Big Three," his name is often left out of the discussion, or is at best an afterthought. In this fascinating autobiography, Casper tells his life story, shining candid insight into the man who quietly collected fifty-one PGA Tour victories, the seventh highest total in history.

This book is for Hospitality, Hotel, & Restaurant leaders, executive & general managers who know that the pathway to success and profit in their business is through their teams. But don't know how to get the performance they need. Especially in times of crisis. Many hospitality teams are out of focus and need clarity. They exhibit poor decision-making and there is a vast communication gap between management and team members. Leadership has never been more important than it is now, and sadly, many business leaders are not supported with the leadership education they so desperately need. This book takes you through the 9 strategies to build a highly resilient and effective hospitality team. And best of all.. 1. All strategies are simple to implement 2. And designed to be rolling within 90 days 3. With minimal or no additional cost. Shift your team, grow your profitability Improve the business of your hotel

Say Something Oxford University Press
In contemporary philosophy, substantive moral theories are typically classified as either consequentialist or deontological. Standard consequentialist theories insist, roughly, that agents must always act so as to produce the best available outcomes overall. Standard deontological theories, by contrast, maintain that there are some circumstances where one is permitted but not required to produce the best overall results, and still other circumstances in which one is positively forbidden to do so. Classical utilitarianism is the most familiar consequentialist view, but it is widely regarded as an inadequate account of morality. Although Professor Scheffler agrees with this assessment, he also believes that consequentialism seems initially plausible, and that there is a persistent air of paradox surrounding typical deontological views. In this book, therefore, he undertakes to reconsider the rejection of consequentialism. He argues that it is possible to provide a rationale for the view that agents need not always produce the best possible overall outcomes, and this motivates one departure from consequentialism; but he shows that it is surprisingly difficult to provide a satisfactory rationale for the view that there are times when agents must not produce the best possible overall outcomes. He goes on to argue for a hitherto neglected type of moral conception, according to which agents are always permitted, but not always required, to produce the best outcomes.

What does the future hold for the UN? In this book, twenty-two scholars from all continents cover prevention of violence, creating economic and social structures that sustain human fulfilment, sharing and protecting the commons, and peace education. They offer sixty-six recommendations for new institutions and programs on issues that include controlling weapons, humanitarian intervention, human rights, economic policies, advancement of women, refugees, ecological security, communications, and peace education. Most of the recommendations do not require amendments to the UN Charter or to the treaties establishing the UN Specialized Agencies. Instead, their implementation would require creative efforts of Member States, secretariats, NGOs, and dedicated individuals that are pointed toward attainment of multilateral capacity for coping with an array of global problems that increasingly threaten the quality of human life.

School refusal affects up to 5% of children and is a complex and stressful issue for the child, their family and school. The more time a child is away from school, the more difficult it is for the child to resume normal school life. If school refusal becomes an ongoing issue it can negatively impact the child's social and educational development.

Psychologist Joanne Garfi spends most of her working life assisting parents, teachers, school counsellors, caseworkers, and community policing officers on how best to deal with school refusal. Now her experiences and expertise are available in this easy-to-read practical book. Overcoming School Refusal helps readers understand this complex issue by explaining exactly what school refusal is and provides them with a range of strategies they can use to assist children in returning to school. Areas covered include: • types of school refusers • why children refuse to go to school • symptoms • short term and long term consequences • accurate assessment • treatment options • what parents can do • what schools can do • dealing with anxious high achievers • how to help children on the autism spectrum with school refusal

For the fourth time now, experts in tourism from various countries come to attend the ENTER conference in order to inform themselves and others about the current developments in the usage of information and communication technologies. The ENTER conference is thought as a platform for the exchange of ideas, experiences, opinions, and visions among scientists and practitioners. The visions presented at the last three ENTER conferences have triggered many requirements of important on-going and planned projects in the application of communication and information technologies in tourism. The scope of the papers of this proceedings covers the most recent and relevant to pics in our area of interest. The sessions are primarily devoted to intelligent agents and systems, the future role of global (reservation) systems, the new chances of data base applications due to the most recent technological developments. and above all the role of the Internet (and Intranet). I would like to express my cordial thanks to all institutions actively supporting this event, namely: • The Edinburgh & Lothian Tourist Board • The International Federation of Information Technology in Tourism (IFITT) Several people spent numerous hours organizing the scientific programme of EN TER. The names of most of them will appear in the following pages.

Im Herbst 2012 wird das Museum Berggruen wieder seine Pforten öffnen umfangreich renoviert und ergänzt um einen Erweiterungsbau, das sogenannte Kommandantenhaus am Spandauer Damm. Die im Jahr 2000 von der Nationalgalerie erworbene Sammlung zur Klassischen Moderne von Heinz Berggruen erhält somit mehr Platz für zusätzliche Leihgaben aus dem Besitz der Familie. In diesem hochwertigen Bildband sind neben den zahlreichen Werken von Picasso, Klee und Matisse, die den Kernbestand des Museums bilden, auch Arbeiten von ihren großen Zeitgenossen Alberto Giacometti, Henri Laurens, Georges Braque sowie afrikanische Plastik abgebildet. Die im Museum neu hinzugekommenen Werke werden mit großformatigen Abbildungen und in bewährter Manier mit kommentierenden, aktuell geschriebenen Texten vorgestellt. 0.
