Hydroponics is the method of growing plants without soil by supplying them with a constant nutrient solution. Despite the fact that this method remains fairly unknown outside of a small sector of the horticultural world it has in fact been around for a long time. It is a system that was used extensively in the hanging gardens of Babylon and has been studied extensively by scientists and horticulturists for the last several hundred years. There are many powerful reasons for commercial food growers to use this method but it is also now being used more frequently by the domestic gardener keen to produce a high yield in a small amount of space. Though it is seen primarily as a way of producing crops for the table it is also a method that can be used for the production of ornamental plants. All plants require air, light, and dissolved nutrients to grow. Hydroponics allows for a very precisely controlled amount of nutrients, dissolved in water, to be administered directly to the root system, as the plant requires it. Because the root system is no longer obliged to spread so far in order to attain the nutrients it requires this in turn enables the grower to plant his crops at much higher densities which is just one reason why hydroponic crop yields are so much greater than the more traditional soil planted yields.

This new version of The Secret Method for Growing Younger is updated and expanded! What's not new is The Law of Attraction, one of the Universal Laws that has governed the entire cosmos since the beginning of creation. Today, scientific discoveries are revealing what many wise teachers and healers have taught for centuries: our thoughts and beliefs create our reality. Like gravity, the Law of Attraction works whether we believe in it or not, and whether we use it knowingly or not. This cosmic law says that our minds are very powerful and what we focus on, with emotion, becomes our reality. In a nutshell: You are what you think. Quantum physicists have found, to their complete surprise, that matter is affected by thought, a discovery that rocked the boat for the scientific community. Scientists have since peered into the life of our trillions of cells and found that they are actually responding to our thoughts and beliefs. What we say to ourselves about who we are and how we age does matter! Ellen Wood discovered that truth after her mother wasted away with Alzheimer's and she started on the same path of progressive cognitive decline, loss of vitality and depression. Then in 2004 Ellen "woke up" and developed a program of Mind Body Spirit techniques which she practiced (and continues practicing) daily. It worked! She reversed memory loss and re-gained energy, exuberance and joie de vivre. Even though Ellen has the dreaded APO-e4 Alzheimer's gene, she knows the mind can turn genes on and off and her daily practices are keeping that gene from expressing again. The Secret Method for Growing Younger - My Journey Through Alzheimer's to the Fountain of Youth Using the Law of Attraction is Volume 1 of Ellen's self help, anti-aging program and is endorsed by noted physicians and experts, including the world-renowned author, speaker and spiritual teacher, Marianne Williamson. This book lays the mental and spiritual foundation for rejuvenation. The Secret Method for Growing Younger was previously published as Think and Grow Young. Winner of the Gold Nautilus Book Award, The Secret Method for Growing Younger, Volume 1, provides vital first steps. The other volumes contain complete instructions for all the habits which transformed her life. "Ellen Wood provides a powerful and inspiring model for living a joyful, energized life at any age." - Marianne Williamson, internationally acclaimed spiritual teacher and author of 7 New York Times bestsellers.

Why Ellen Wood's Anti-Aging Program Is

UniqueSpend two minutes in Ellen's company and you'll feel her joie de vivre and marvel at her youthfulness. That's because Ellen is living proof that her "Think and Grow Young" program works! Born on November 18, 1936, Ellen wasn't always like this. After watching her mother waste away with Alzheimer's, Ellen found herself starting on the same path of progressive deterioration. Then in 2004 she "woke up" and began a daily practice using the methods in this book. She has since added others which she shares in her blog on <http://www.howtogrowyounger.com>. Ellen's anti-aging program combines knowledge from leading edge science - including neuroscience and epigenetics - with practices used for centuries to quiet the mind and empower the spirit. Even though Ellen has the dreaded Alzheimer's gene, she knows the mind can turn genes on and off and her daily practices are intended to keep that gene from becoming expressed. In this way she is an effective role model for Baby Boomers who are taking care of parents with dementia and worrying that the same thing might happen to them. Another reason Ellen's program is unique? For her, Growing Young is not a destination. It's not a promise of youthfulness someday in the future. Her program is a journey from the inside out that infuses each day with joy. It's about releasing stress, the number one aging factor, and having inner peace - not by cutting out the noise of life or the challenge of relationships - but instead being in the midst of all that noise and challenge while being in harmony with your heart and spirit. Her program of Grow Young action steps shows you how to use your spiritual power and your mind to experience life with vigor and passion, look great and share joy and love. By growing young, you can be of service and become a role model for the rest of the world. The audio version of "Think and Grow Young" is the GOLD winner of the Nautilus Book Awards in the Audio Books category. Ellen's website is <http://www.howtogrowyounger.com>, where you can sign up for her free gifts. "Think and Grow Young" was previously published as "The Secret Method for Growing Younger."
