sol-fa is a pedagogical technique for teaching sight-singing, invented by Sarah Ann Glover of Norwich, England and popularised by John Curwen, who adapted it from a number of earlier musical systems. It uses a system of musical notation based on movable do solfège, whereby every note is given a name according to its relationship with other notes in the key: the usual staff notation is replaced with anglicized solfège syllables or their abbreviations. Tonic, or relative, sol-fa is a notation system in which each note of a scale is given a single-syllable name - the first degree of the scale is "do", the second "re", and so forth. As a syllable is associated with a degree of the scale, the relationships between the various symbols remain the same when a tune is transposed.
