The University of Iowa Between 1940 and 1950, whites settled throughout the suburban St. Louis counties and in a few tracts surrounding Forest Park and in the City’s southern reaches. Many of these were new arrivals to the St. Louis area, but many (evidenced by the collapsing white population in many central city tracts) were moving from the City to its suburbs. Mapping Decline | Colin Gordon | The University of Iowa
